Dear Arthur:

I am dictating this in Tucson, Arizona, where we have been for the past month enjoying weather that much of the time was colder and less agreeable than it probably was in Purchase. However . . .

We'll be home by the time you get this, but Judith has sent me a couple of your early reviews--those by Wechsberg and Freeman--and I must tell you how exciting we found them. Our heartiest congratulations to my old and dear friend, "Was fuer ein Mann", the closing words, I believe, of the admirable German translation of Bernard Shaw's "Arms and the Man".

And our best love to you and Nela.

Yours always,

Alfred and Helen
