Jerusalem's children are indeed Jerusalem's future. If we foster tolerance and understanding in our children, we will help future generations learn to live together. We want our children, Jew and Arab, religious and secular, rich and poor, to grow up in a city of free access to all Holy Places, a city of restored historical monuments, a city of parks and gardens, music, theater and museums, community centers and sportsfields. We want our young people to be the generation of faith and of peace.
